The Housing Authority of Santa Clara County Issues Contract to Local Consulting Firm

On October 6, 2006, the Housing Authority of the County of Santa Clara (HACSC) issued a contract with Benchmark Environmental Engineering for Mold Testing Services.

The HACSC provides rental subsidies and develops affordable housing for low income families, seniors and persons with disabilities living in Santa Clara County, California, the heart of Silicon Valley.

The large population and critical need for affordable housing in the Santa Clara Valley has made the agency one of the largest Housing Authorities in the country, and through its accomplishments and partnerships with community organizations, local property owners, major financial institutions and local City government, the agency has also become one of the most reputable in the nation.

Benchmark Environmental Engineering, a California based company, provides lead inspection services to numerous Cities and Counties within the State of California and directly to the Housing Urban Development in Washington D.C.
